The late Mike Stevens discussed this years ago in his book, Mastering Layout. Mike's simple formula was that decorative typefaces were to be used sparingly for the primary copy. Secondary text should be done in highly legible type to ensure that more of the message could be read in the minimal time that most viewers have to read a sign.

There was a time, as recently as the 1980s, when storefronts, murals, banners, barn signs, billboards, and even street signs were all hand-lettered with brush and paint. But, like many skilled trades, the sign industry has been overrun by the techno-fueled promise of quicker and cheaper. The resulting proliferation of computer-designed, die-cut vinyl lettering and inkjet printers has ushered a creeping sameness into our visual landscape. Fortunately, there is a growing trend to seek out traditional sign painters and a renaissance in the trade. In 2010 filmmakers Faythe Levine, coauthor of Handmade Nation, and Sam Macon began documenting these dedicated practitioners, their time-honored methods, and their appreciation for quality and craftsmanship. Sign Painters, the first anecdotal history of the craft, features stories and photographs of more than two dozen sign painters working in cities throughout the United States. With a foreword by legendary artist (and former sign painter) Ed Ruscha, this vibrant book profiles sign painters young and old, from the new vanguard working solo to collaborative shops such as San Francisco s New Bohemia Signs and New York s Colossal Media s Sky High Murals.

Written with the complete novice in mind, here is the ultimate beginners guide to setting up and running a small sign making business. Starting off with the very basics, this book will guide you through the latest computer aided design and manufacturing process used in modern day sign production.For someone looking around for ideas to start a small business you may find this is the ideal business opportunity for you.

We have each been made by a loving God who has a redemptive plan for our lives. If we have found this new life through Jesus, we have the opportunity to walk alongside the next generation, helping them to understand that each individual is God's work of art and that He has a great plan for their lives. The way we can do this is through relationships. Relationship is the glue that enables us to have an intimate connection with Jesus and with the young people He has placed in our care.
