driving each other crazy? “[S]urprisingly refreshing, and will have readers experiencing many belly laughs.” –RT Book Reviews

“She wasn’t pretty but she was ours...” Sandwiched between seedy businesses in the scorching east LA suburb of Glendale, the Damned Lovely dive bar is as scarred as its regulars: ex-cops, misfits and loners. And for Sam Goss, it’s a refuge from the promising life he’s walked away from, a place to write, a hole to hide in—drowning in bourbon and dreams of becoming America’s next F Scott. So when Josie Pendleton—the beautiful and mysterious recent addition to the bar—turns up as a sordid headline, murdered in the backseat of a cheap sedan and the third victim of a serial killer terrorizing the local streets of Glendale, Sam can’t stop himself from getting involved. Sure, he’ll admit he’s obsessed with the girl at the end of the bar he only had a brief interaction with, but there’s something about her ghost that won’t let go... Determined to find out everything about Josie, Sam does a deep dive into her life—masquerading as an old pal at her funeral, stalking her radical right-wing ex-lover and even following the lead homicide detective down to the morgue - if only to see her face one last time. But as he digs deeper into her life, Sam starts to question the local PD’s serial killer angle on her slaying and before long, finds more questions than answers. It only sets the hook deeper and he obsesses in finding the truth about her killer. Armed with the war-stories and playbook from the burned-out cops at the Lovely, Sam recklessly cooks up his own murder investigation—bumping heads with hardened detectives and asking questions nobody wants to answer. But in the process, he begins to regain a sense of purpose. As if uncovering the truth about Josie’s killer might heal some part of his own broken life. It sets him on a collision course with corrupt cops, violent fundamentalists, brazen embezzlers—and someone dangerously close to home—all who want to make sure the truth never comes out. Praise for The Damned Lovely: “The Damned Lovely is the LA crime story born anew, an addictive mystery and a love letter to the careworn and forgotten places of Los Angeles - Los Angeles as it is right now. Adam Frost is a crime writer with a sharp new voice, telling a tale about the one thing everyone in Los Angeles has: desire. Desire for truth, for justice, for love, or maybe just a place to call home. Highly recommended.” –Jordan Harper, Edgar Award-winning author of She Rides Shotgun “Frost’s crackling debut novel belongs on the shelf right next to Joseph Wambaugh and Michael Connelly. Crisp prose. An intricate plot worthy of Raymond Chandler, packed with scruffy, lovable, and lived-in characters that leap off the page. Frost brings a fresh voice and much-needed new blood to LA crime fiction.” –Will Beall, author of L.A. Rex and creator of CBS’s Training Day “An unputdownable and suspenseful whodunnit: anchored in the quandary of manifesting destiny in grief and lost opportunity.” –Blake Howard, producer and host of the One Heat Minute podcast and Film Critic “Every bourbon-soaked sentence in this endlessly entertaining first novel proves Joseph Wambaugh dipped Adam Frost by his ankle into the L.A. river. Roll over Michael Connelly, tell

Raymond Chandler the news." –Adam Novak, author of Rat Park and Take Fountain

Veteran women's fiction writer Lauren Baratz-Logsted presents the moving story of a family disrupted by fame, perfect for fans of Elin Hilderbrand and Nancy Thayer. Ever wonder what it must be like to be the younger sibling of someone so popular, princes and presidents are excited to meet him? Mona knows. Or thinks she does. Mona is married to Jack, younger brother to Denny Springer, lead singer for The Greatest Rock-and-Roll Band in the World. Jack happens to sing too, of course, not that anyone in the world notices very much. After Denny attends the family Easter dinner in London for the first time in decades, Mona invites Denny to join her and her family for the summer at a rental house in coastal Connecticut. She tells Denny it'll be a chance for him to finally bond with Jack, from whom Denny has been estranged for twenty years. Denny initially laughs at the idea...but then shows up on their doorstep. As the summer progresses, though, questions arise: Did Denny really have a change of heart and a sudden commitment to family? Or is he hiding something? More importantly, why did Mona invite him in the first place? Most importantly of all, how well do we ever really know anybody? "Lauren Baratz-Logsted writes genuine characters, killer comedic timing and romantic blunders that are truly something special." –RT Book Reviews

Take two reality pills and call me in the morning. Swine Flu. Financial meltdown. It's been a bad year for pigs and pigs in suits. The only thing for it is a good dose of Catherine Deveny, who each week in the Age puts everything into perspective with her trademark iconoclastic wit. Free to a Good Home includes her thoughts on gifted children and breakfast television, sexy billboards and the bill of rights. She reflects on her youngest child's first day at school, and on how to be happy in hard times. Fearlessly funny and always provocative, Deveny is the perfect antidote to the modern world's ills. Can anyone explain why I did this? I went to the chemist and bought this crap I put on my face to make me look younger. I put the jar on the counter. The chemist girl said, 'Is this stuff any good?' I said, 'Yeah.' She said, 'Really?' I said, 'I'm sixty.' Eyes like saucers, mouth agape, she gasped, 'OH MY GOD! Sixty! Toula! Fatima! Kelly! Come and check out this old lady. She's sixty!' So the other chemist girls scurried over and after a bit of oohing and aahing one said, 'Oh my God! Sixty? You look like you're forty-five!' I'm forty. Chemist girls, one. Smart-arse, zero.
